Re: Red's Products Impacted by BrucePac Recall Expansion

Please see below and attached. We received notification of a product recall expansion from BrucePac (one of our chicken suppliers) on the evening of 10/15/24. They are recalling additional poultry products due to possible Listeria contamination. More information on the full scope and impact of the BrucePac Class 1 recall can be found here on the UDSA website.

At Red's, the health and safety of our consumers is of the utmost importance. We have a certificate of analysis for each load of chicken received with a negative Listeria test result. In an abundance of caution given BrucePac's recall expansion, we are voluntarily recalling three Red's items with the lots and best by dates listed below. This is in addition to what we communicated to you on October 9, 2024.

We apologize for the inconvenience of this second announcement and appreciate your cooperation and partnership as we work through this situation. This is the information we have at this time. We will continue to keep you updated as the situation develops.

Your Red's account manager will work with you on any necessary paperwork and next steps. Red's will also arrange to pick the impacted product up or request you please provide proof of destruction.
